Identifying Prime Farmland

The Soil Conservation Service now has a written policy concerning some of the most important resources in the nation – prime and unique farmlands. This announcement comes from Mr. R. M. Davis, Administrator of the SCS.

In recent years, special interest groups have called for the recognition of the importance of wetlands and recreational lands and hunting and fishing lands. Farmers and rural landowners feel that prime and unique farmlands are just as important – even more important – in sustaining the quality of our life.

SCS defines prime farmland as land suited for producing food, feed, forage, fiber and oilseed crops, and also available for these uses. The land could be cropland, pastureland, rangeland, or forest land. It has the soil quality, growing season, and moisture supply needed to produce sustained high yields of crops economically when treated and managed with modern methods.

These prime lands can be farmed continously or nearly continously without degrading the environment...they will produce the most with the least amount of energy...they are the most responsive to to management and require the least investment for maintaining productivity.

Unique farmland is land, other than prime farmland, that is used for the production of specific high-value food and fiber crops. It has the special combination of soil quality, location, growing season, and moisture supply needed to produce sustained high quality and /or yields of a specific crop when treated and managed according to modern farming methods. Such crops include citrus, olives, cranberries, fruit, and vegetables.

The SCS policy memorandum on prime farmland spells out the soil characteristics and other physical criteria which the Service will now use to conduct a national inventory of prime and unique farmland "By interpreting information in soil surveys in light of these physical criteria, we can identify and inventory the nation's most productive farmlands in a reasonable time," Mr. Davis states.

The inventory is being conducted in cooperation with other interested agencies at the national, state, and local levels of government. Many of these agencies have worked closely with SCS to develop definitions so that the inventory will be uniform throughout the nation.

"We are also initiating a monitoring system to reflect significant changes in the use of prime and unique farmlands. This, too, will help us monitor the productive capacity of American agriculture in the years ahead," Mr. Davis also states. Under no circumstance will the inventories constitute a designation of any land area to a specific use, nor advocate such. Such designations are the prerogrative of responsible officials of concerned local and state government agencies.

Now, those concerned with the preservation of prime and unique farmlands will have additional and better information on which to base judgments that will help preserve, protect, and improve these lands–the best producing lands in the United States.

BIG BAND SOUND WITH RUSTY NICHOLS AT FINE ARTS CENTER

Hey! Do you remember the 40's? Do you remember the beautiful girls and the handsome boys in evening clothes at the dances and proms? And the great bands? Oh! What great bands! - Tommy Dorsey, Glen Miller, Bennie Goodman, Count Basie, Jimmie Dorsey, Glen Gray, -!!

You Young 'Uns! Have you wondered what the old folks raved about?

Well - - - Here it is!!!

With a wave of his trombone Rusty Nichols returns to the Lynchburg Fine Arts Center stage with his magnificent, elegant - - - that's the word! Elegant! - - band, playing the tunes of the 40's in the arrangements of the 40's.

"Make no mistake about it," Rusty says, "The arrangements are the same; the instruments are the same. We play it like it was, and we love it!" So do a lot of others, apparently. Rusty Nichols and his band have become an annual affair at the Center, and the concert is always well attended. A sizable group came all the way from Roanoke last year to be on hand for the gala affair - - - two weeks late!

Rusty comes by this love naturally, he was vocalist and trombonist with Jimmie Dorsey and Charlie Spivak during the time when great bands and great tunes were sweeping the country. He collected the tune arrangements that time and now has put together a group of superlative musicians to bring it to you. Many of them played with these bands themselves. The younger members have been captivated by the style of the older music and are also some of its most enthusiastic supporters.

Rusty also said, "We've got some real fine Dixieland players in the band, too. We're going to take advantage of that to bring you a few of those great tunes, too." So, there will be a little Dixieland mixed in with the Big Band tunes.

Lynchburg players in the band are Dee Roberts, piano; Hank Pillow, base; Chuck Williams, drums, and Bill Carroll, first trumpet.

The other band members are people from all over the East who have settled in the Roanoke area. They are all accomplished musicians who have played with fine bands all over the country. Many now teach music. Others are professional musicians, business owners, salesmen, etc. in the daytime, but at night they play with various gorups throughout the region, gladdening the hearts of those within earshot.

Why don't you plan to be within earshot 8 p.m., Feb. 22, at the Lynchburg Fine Arts Center auditorium? It'll be a great experience!! - In fact, Do it NOW! Send $4.00 ($2.50 for students) to "BIG BAND SOUND", Lynchburg Fine Arts Center, 1815 Thomson Dr., Lynchburg, Va. 24501. This way you can be sure to get one of the only 536 seats available. On Feb. 19, the day the box office opens, your order will have the very first priority. You may specify the area you want since the seats are reserved.

Don't forget - - This is music the way it used to be - - - Beautiful, Haunting, Romantic, Poignant, Heartwarming - - - Elegant - - Yes, that's the word! - Elegant!

Quota Topped At Bloodmobile Visit

The Red Cross Bloodmobile made its fourth of five visits scheduled for the fiscal year to Appomattox on Tuesday of this week.

The quota for this visit was set at 102 units of blood and with 105 donors on hand to give a unit of their blood, the visit was a success and Appomattox County remains 100% of its quota thus far into the year.

Primary - Elementary Schools Advancing in Self-Study SACS

Mrs. Margaret Moss, State Department of Education, and Consultant for the self-study in the Appomattox County Elementary Schools provided in-service to teachers and administraton on February 19, 1976. Pictured above are Mr. Robert Williamson, Principal at Appomattox Elementary School; Mrs. Fannie Walton, Chairman of Learning Media; Mrs. Moss; Mrs. Carolyn Coleman, Chairman of Steering Committee; and Mrs. Ruth Webb, School Board Member.

An agenda for the day included a review of the School Plant and Pupil Services Committee reports, conferences with committee chairpersons, and organization of two additional committees.

Mrs. Moss was pleased with the progress and conveyed her thoughts of being "on schedule" to meet accreditation status by December, 1977.

A coffee was held at the Appomattox Elementary School Library in honor of committee members on the School Plant and Pupil Services areas. Mrs. Betsy Keaton and Mrs. Mary Ann Almond were hostesses for the occasion.

THE DOWNTOWN DRUGSTORE

Only a few years ago, it was to the Downtown Drugstore people would flow.
Now that our drugstore has gone,
It has surely left the downtown people all alone.
We have no place for a coke and a bit to eat -
And to say hello to the friendly people we use to meet.
Yes, the downtown store was our best; you could order a sandwhich, sit down and rest.
Things have made a big change as you know,
Today you serve yourself, you pay, then you go.

Mr. Spencer was an outstanding man, always willing to help his fellow man.
If you needed something and your money ran out
You could say charge it without a doubt.
I am sure we will not experience this again
Our Downtown drugstore has gone, This is the end.
May I add this, it is missed by one and all.
I am speaking about the Downtown Rexall.

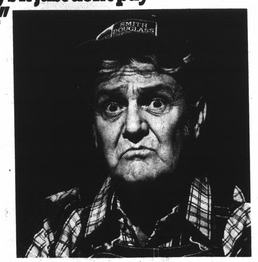
IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE In the TIMES-VIRGINIAN

"The tractor won't start.
The hens won't lay.
And there's a leak in the smoke house roof. Now they tell me Lynchburg Federal has changed their name to American Federal.
Some days it just don't pay to get up."



Don't fret.
The only thing we're changing is our name. You see, we've grown to cover a lot more than Lynchburg. And, besides, the bicentennial seemed like a good time to go American.
But some things you just don't tamper with. Our savings rates are as friendly as ever and so are our people.
If anything, we're a little friendlier now that we're making a new name for ourselves. So come on in. To American Federal.
